Diversion is the procedure of having a criminal charge gotten rid of from a customers irreversible document. Where I practice in Tennessee there are 2 sorts of diversion: judicial and pre-trial. Pre-trial diversion is likewise known as Attorney general of the united states diversion, because the A.G. (likewise called the D.A. or the district attorney) has the sole power to give it. While the two have essentially the very same result-dismissal of the charge and the ability to obtain it expunged-both have some substantial distinctions in practice and treatment. Judicial diversion needs a guilty appeal and a period of monitored probation. Pre-trial diversion, which is the concentration of this write-up, functions a little bit different. Remember that this write-up deals specifically with Tennessee regulations. Your neighborhood regulations may vary.
