Just said, micro occupation websites are "Quick Freelance Job Boards" where freelancers (sellers) offer a variety of services and buyers come shop and purchase these services - as simple as that. The first and most well known micro occupation website is Fiverr found in 2010. It is a website where you offer a gig (service) for $5 and a buyer just buys it for $5. You do the work and get paid $4 when done. This idea was so hot that it was featured in news programs, big name magazines, and websites.
